

Rocking the Mosquitoes

Australian music-maker Jason B has completed his first ever tour of India where he introduced his infectious style of music to a new audience...including millions of mosquitoes. (pictured above)

“At some gigs, the mosquitoes were so bad they would fly into my mouth as soon as I started singing,” Jason B says. “I had to turn and spit them out in the middle of the song. I quickly learned to sing with my mouth half-closed.”

Photos and videos of his tour are being posted at his ‘feel good’ myspace page:
www.myspace.com/jasonbofficial

“Music brings people together,” says Jason B. “It doesn’t matter what language you speak, everyone digs a good beat. Even the mosquitoes...”

Below: Jason B takes his feel good rock/pop music to the world’s second largest nation.

